

AMY C. WESTON

(206) 607-4117

weston@carneylaw.com

Amy advises early stage and emerging technology companies in three main areas: Commercial Contracts, Privacy, and General Corporate Counsel.

Education

JD, Boston University School of Law, cum laude

MA, University of British Columbia

BA, Kalamazoo College, cum laude

Bar and Court Admissions

Washington State 2013

Commonwealth of Massachusetts, 2007

Professional Associations

International Association of Privacy Professionals

Washington State Bar Association

King County Bar Association

Commercial Contracts

Amy drafts, develops, reviews and negotiates client-favorable terms in complex high volume commercial transactions, including:

- Master Services Agreements
- SaaS and Software Agreements
- Licensing Agreements
- Online Terms of Use and EULAs
- OEM and Supplier Agreements
- Reseller Agreements

Amy recognizes that a strong commercial agreement must be tailored to fit the tone, size and scope of the deal and the client's industry. She works with clients to develop contracts that will minimize friction and get the deal done while protecting the client's intellectual property and technology, limiting the client's liability and meeting all licensing and regulatory compliance standards.

Privacy

Amy advises clients on privacy and other regulatory compliance and best practices, and helps clients safeguard proprietary inventions, systems, and processes. Representative privacy counsel includes:

Amy is a CIPP/US certificated privacy professional and a member of the International Association of Privacy Professionals.

General Corporate Counsel

Amy supports start-up and emerging companies at all stages of their corporate lifecycle, from entity formation and founder stock issuances to negotiating and closing sell-side and buy-side merger and acquisition transactions. Amy has over ten years of experience helping clients secure capital through angel and venture capital debt and equity financing rounds.

Prior to joining Carney Badley Spellman, Amy was a principal at Company Counsel, LLC, a Boston-based law firm specializing in representing growth and emerging technology companies located throughout the United States. Before that Amy was an attorney with the law firm Choate, Hall & Stewart LLP in Boston, where she focused her practice on corporate and transactional law, as well as general tax law.

- Integrating “privacy by design” as part of a successful business model
- Designing, implementing, and overseeing privacy, information security and data protection programs
- Drafting and reviewing privacy policies and online terms of service
- Compliance with GDPR, CCPA and other rapidly developing and changing privacy laws
- Strategizing data breach prevention and response

Amy is a CIPP/US certificated privacy professional and a member of the International Association of Privacy Professionals.

Community Involvement

- Volunteer Attorney, Northwest Immigrant Rights Project